Other Eastern Rites

With the exception of the Six Exarchates of the Byzantine-Ruthenian Rite and the Maronite and Melkite Rites as listed in the preceding pages of The Official Catholic Directory, other Eastern Rites in communion with Rome do not have Ordinaries of their own in the United States. Consequently they are under the jurisdiction of the local Ordinary and the various parishes and institutions are incorporated in the Archdiocesan and Diocesan listings. Please consult these pages for full information regarding churches, personnel and statistics. For convenience, however, below are listed the Eastern Rite churches and the cities in which they are located.

JAPAN

The Japan Passionist Missions in central Japan were officially erected on March 9, 1953. At that time, a Retreat Center and canonical foundation with regular observance was established in Takarazuka, a suburb of Osaka. Subsequently, a novitiate for native candidates was added to this foundation. In 1963, a second Retreat Center and canonical foundation was established in Fukuoka in close proximity to a large secular university (students: 26,000), where special apostolates among university students are conducted. Also in 1963, an Apostolic Center and canonical foundation was established in Tokyo in conjunction with a house of religious formation. The Tokyo Apostolic Center conducts various programs, particularly among university students and workers, to spread the faith among the millions of non-christians of the city. Itinerant preachers from these three centers conduct parish missions and retreats throughout the entire country. A mission parish in the archdiocese of Osaka includes the cities of Ikeda, Kawanishi, part of Takarazuka and approximately 40 sq. miles of mountain territory with a composite population of 210,000.

KOREA

The Passionist Missions in South Korea were established on March 4, 1964 by a Beneplacitum of the Sacred Congregation of the Propagation of the Faith. The first foundation was made in the city of Kwangju, which is also the seat of the Archdiocese. The territory embraces 5,285.96 sq. miles. The Passionists operate a large retreat house in Kwangju, for priests, religious and laity. Last year over four thousand people made use of the facility. Besides formal retreats, there are seminars, work-shops and courses of various kinds. Some of the work is ecumenical. In 1969 a small retreat house was opened in Seoul, a city of over six million people and the capital of Korea. Retreats are conducted regularly here. Construction of a large retreat house was completed in Jan. 1977 on the outskirts of the city. The foundation in Seoul is also the house of formation for Korean Passionists attending the Major Seminary and other universities.
